SYSTEM AND METHOD FOR DYNAMICALLY DISPLAYING HTML FORM ELEMENTS

ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE

A method of selectively displaying a markup language form element on a Web page when an associated object is available to a Web server, the method comprising associating the markup language form element with the object, determining whether the object is available to the Web server; generating a markup language document that includes the markup language form element if the object is available to the Web server, and displaying the markup language form element if the markup language document contains the markup language form element.